Description: This level of training is meant for the professionals having considerable amount of experience and are ready to take up the responsibilities at the top management level. This course gives them the in-depth knowledge about Six Sigma and trains them in the every small detail related to Six Sigma. Special training is given to trainees having little or no background to Statistics. Getting trained at this level would guarantee an excellent job opportunity in MNCs like GE, TCS, Motorola who are recruiting Black Belts in huge numbers

Mode of training: The training for Black belt is carried out in ten modules. Extensive training is carried out in each module. At this level, the training is carried out through a mixture of PPTs, web-based material and case studies. Heavy stress is given on the Case studies as the main aim of this level is to teach the trainees about the application of various tools and theories of Six Sigma in real practice. All efforts would be made to make the trainee understand all the concepts. In extreme case, representatives would visit the trainee to solve the problem personally.

In addition to the PPT, you would also be provided additional web based study material which would help you understand the concepts taught in the PPT. Once the trainee goes through the complete study material for one module, he/ she would be required to contact the Master Black Belt for any doubts/ clarification required for the training carried out so far. These interactive sessions would be carried out through e-mails, chats and mobile conversations. Only when the trainee gets convinced that he/she has understood the concepts of one module, the study material of the next module shall be sent.

Examination: The examination for this course is carried out in two stages. The first stage would be completely objective questions based on theory and small case study.

Examination for the certification is carried out at the place of the trainee. Self executable file is sent to the trainee as and when he/ she is ready to give the examination. This file can be run only once. As soon as the file is run, the count-down would automatically start. The examination would automatically stop once the time limit expires. The examination would be totally objective. The questions would be asked from the theory taught during the training sessions and a detailed case study to check if the trainee is able to apply the concepts in the real life situations.
